Welcome to the Niche Finder's Report, Volume 1. This report includes an in-depth look at three niches, a "quick look" at a half dozen more, plus tips and ideas to help you brainstorm up even more profitable markets.

The "word counts," KEI (keyword effectiveness index) and other measurements were compiled using the Wordtracker database. Wordtracker essentially estimates how many times the keywords you input will be searched across various search engines, it looks at how many competing sites contain those same keywords, and then spits out the KEI which is just an estimation of how good the keyword is.

For example: if there are 150 searches per day in Google on a particular keyword or keyword phrase, but only one competing website, that's a good word for you to target since you don't have much competition.

But here's the thing: the KEI only matters if you plan on doing search engine marketing. If you are doing press releases or joint ventures or using affiliates or classified ads or any number of non-search engine related methods, the KEI just isn't that important. Instead, you need to be looking at your competition overall, and how to beat them by providing an interesting USP (unique sales proposition).

If you are interested in search engine marketing, here's a warning: don't base your decisions solely on the KEI value. Just because a keyword has a low KEI value doesn't mean you shouldn't target it. My advice is to hit up the search engines and actually

LOOK at your competition. You may find that you have lots of competitors, but you may also find their sites aren't really optimized. Spend a few extra minutes working on your site, and YOU can be at the top of the search engines for valuable keywords.

As an example: I once did a search on a particular hobby. The KEI didn't look good (all low values for the best words). But when I went to the search engines and looked at my competition, I found that mainly I was up against amateur webmasters who were more interested in their hobby than in getting into the top of the search engines. Easy to beat.

Now, in cases where search engine marketing isn't at the top of your list, you would be more interested in looking at the "counts" – or how many times a keyword is searched. This way you can use the counts as an estimation of how many people are interested in that niche. Plus, you can get some very valuable information about what people want.

For example, suppose you started thinking about the market of buyers who want to build their own swimming pools. And suppose that you're thinking about monetizing a related site by providing an ebook chock full of "how to" information.

Now when you start doing your search you'll most likely uncover exactly what people want to read about. But you may hit on some things you never thought of. For example, you may find people searching for certain pool parts at certain prices. BINGO – now you know your site will be even more profitable if you provide affiliate links to these parts. Or perhaps you also want to take this information and create an AdWords campaign targeting these parts buyers. Regardless of how you choose to do it, you now have the info you need to make dabbling in this market profitable for you.

Enough intro – let's jump in and look at our markets and how we can profit from them...

Keyword report #1: Head lice

Yikes. Just the thought of head lice is enough to make your head itch. No one likes the idea of having bugs crawling through their hair – or their kid's hair.

Let's think about this market. They probably fall into three main categories:

1. People who have lice and want to get rid of it.
2. People who are trying to prevent getting lice.
3. People who are just curious about lice.

This is just a hunch, but I'm betting that a fair number of the overall people doing searches for head lice topics already HAVE lice (just check out the top 20 keywords below – several deal with getting rid of or identifying lice). They probably aren't lolly-gagging and reading up on lice for pleasure. They or their kids probably have lice in their hair RIGHT NOW – and they desperately want them gone ...RIGHT NOW.

Yesterday would have been better.

So what does that mean? It means this particular segment of the market may want to read reviews of lice shampoos and other products, but they're not going to buy them online because they can't sit around for days waiting for their shampoo to come. No, if they read about shampoos and other treatments, they're probably doing it so they know which one to buy when they head out to their local store.

In this case (for this segment of the market only) it's better to have information.

First, you can have good articles and info posted to draw people in. AdSense might work well here, because you'll pick up some coin for people clicking on other people's ads.

Second, you can sell an ebook on how to get rid of lice (including home remedies, which is one thing that you'll see people are looking for). Remember, if these folks already have the lice crawling through their head, they're desperate for a solution. Provide that solution and they'll not only be eternally grateful to you, they'll shell out good cash!

TIP: some people who get lice are embarrassed to go to the store to buy shampoos and nit combs. These are the people who are most likely to want a home remedy.

Another group who wants home remedies are those who are afraid to use toxic products.

If you create an ebook about home remedies, be sure to mention the above motivations in your sales letter. Get inside your reader's head, and they'll buy.

So what about the two other markets?

To the market who wants to prevent lice, you can sell information on the topic, plus here's where you can sell shampoos, nit combs, etc. Afterall, these people presumably have more time on their hands.

TIP: lice prevention makes a great back-end product for people who have previously bought your "get rid of lice" information. People who've had lice now know how important it is to prevent them in the future!

Finally, the other market I mentioned include people who are merely curious. Just a hunch, but I would guess that anyone who reads enough about lice is going to start getting the "heebie jeebies." You can take advantage of this natural response by selling "lice prevention" information and products to them. Or again, perhaps you'd rather just have an information site that earns cash with Google AdSense. Test and see which combination is most profitable for you.

OK, it's time to look at the keywords.

The first list includes 651 of the top keywords and phrases related to lice. This first list is ordered by counts and predictions – meaning this list is useful if you are primarily interested in seeing what phrases are likely to be searched the most on any given day (predictions are based on daily estimates).

The second set of lists include the KEI values for the top 100 key phrases in three of the top search engines (Google, Yahoo, and MSN). I've provided results from those three so that you can optimize certain web pages for certain engines. This list is ordered by descending KEI values. So those nearest the top of the list are theoretically better (again, this only matters IF you are doing search engine marketing, and it's only a big concern if your competition is actually optimizing rather than accidentally getting to the top).

Here is an explanation of the headings for these two types of lists, as taken from Wordtracker documentation:

----- [Explanation of the Headings] -----

1: Line Number.

2: KEI (Keyword Effectiveness Index): Compares the 24Hour result with the number of competing web pages to pinpoint exactly which keywords are most effective for your campaign.

In a nutshell: Look for the keywords near the top. The higher the KEI, the more popular your keywords are, and the less competition they have. Which means you have a better chance of getting to the top.

Use the following guide:

0 - 10 Poor keyword to target
10 - 100 Good keyword to target
100 - 400 Very good keyword to target
400+ Excellent keyword to target

3: Count: The number of times people have entered this keyword from 323151770 search queries. These have been taken from the various MetaCrawlers that we survey.

4: 24Hrs: Using information taken from StatMarket, we have estimated the number of queries this keyword might receive in the current 24 hour period for msn (Search Engine).

5: Competing: The number of competing web pages in (Search Engine).

You are currently using ' exact match searching' , where the keywords are enclosed by quotation marks. We recommend using ' exact match searching' as you are actually competing with sites which have used the keyword exactly as typed in by the user.

6: Keyword.

Keyword Report #2: Sunburn

Ouch, ouch, ouch! Here's another area where part of the market is desperate: they're sunburned, and they need relief right now. The good news is if you can provide a soothing solution, they'll pay you for it.

Now just as with other "desperate" markets (like those who have head lice), those who are already sunburned don't have time to wait for soothing creams to come in the mail. Hence they are looking for home remedies and treatments they already have in their cupboards or medicine cabinets. You can certainly sell an ebook with treatments and methods to sooth the burn.

So what does this segment of the market want? If they just got burned, they want to sleep tonight. Hence instant pain relief is on their want list. They want to soothe those blisters. They want to prevent peeling no doubt. And there's also a part of them that is also starting to wonder if this is going to cause cancer – so they'll want information on that.

The second segment of the market you can attack are those who are trying to prevent sunburn. As with the lice example, a prevention product is a good back-end (follow up) product to pitch to customers who bought relief products from you. You can sell information, sunblock and protective clothing to these folks. And again, cancer information might be of interest. As usual, you can monetize via AdSense, your own products, affiliate products, etc. Don't forget to capture names and email addresses for a newsletter!

The third segment of the market are those who are looking for information in general. Perhaps they are curious, or perhaps they are gathering information so they can write a report or tell their kids about the dangers. Prevention-related information is probably best for these folks.

Now within these more general markets are all sorts of niches you may want to think about. For example, there is a group of people who want to get a natural tan by laying out in the sun day after day. On some level they know it's not a good thing, in that they're putting themselves at risk for cancer. Yet their desire for the tan (beauty) is stronger than their desire to avoid getting sunburned (avoiding pain).

So what happens? These folks want to ease their conscience a bit – and hopefully get that natural tan with minimal risk. So they go in search of information and products (like tanning oil containing slight SPF protection) that will protect them while still allowing them to tan. One group that comes to mind who does this are teenagers and young adults. Another group include bodybuilders (although many bodybuilders are turning to sunless tanning products, since they typically want to be tan mainly for a one day show).

Another segment you might want to tackle in the treatment and prevention field are those who are looking to prevent or soothe sunburns on children, especially babies. You'll see in the list below that sunburn protection for babies is #11 in this list of top 623 phrases – so it's definitely important! Many parents are particularly concerned about non-toxic lotions. Or at the very least, they want gentle lotions that won't be harmful if the child licks it (or perhaps gets it in their eyes).

But I digress. It's time to look at the lists. As usual there are four lists. The first one are the top 623 sunburn-related words, which gives you a daily estimate of the number of times the phrase is searched. The other three lists are the top 100 results for Google, Yahoo and MSN. These three lists include KEI values.

Here's an explanation of the list headings:

----- [Explanation of the Headings] -----

1: Line Number.

2: KEI (Keyword Effectiveness Index): Compares the 24Hour result with the number of competing web pages to pinpoint exactly which keywords are most effective for your campaign.

In a nutshell: Look for the keywords near the top. The higher the KEI, the more popular your keywords are, and the less competition they have. Which means you have a better chance of getting to the top.

Use the following guide:

0 - 10 Poor keyword to target

10 - 100 Good keyword to target

100 - 400 Very good keyword to target

400+ Excellent keyword to target

3: Count: The number of times people have entered this keyword from 323151770 search queries. These have been taken from the various MetaCrawlers that we survey.

4: 24Hrs: Using information taken from StatMarket, we have estimated the number of queries this keyword might receive in the current 24 hour period for (Search Engine).

5: Competing: The number of competing web pages in msn (Search Engine).

You are currently using 'exact match searching', where the keywords are enclosed by quotation marks. We recommend using ' exact match searching' as you are actually competing with sites which have used the keyword exactly as typed in by the user.

6: Keyword.

Keyword Report #3: Terrorism

Terrorism. Nuclear war. Suitcase nukes. Suicide bombers.

It's scary stuff...and it's a hot topic. That means that in addition to your regular marketing methods, you can really leverage these markets by sending out press releases (free publicity!) to the media.

There are lots of searches being conducted on all sorts of inter-related topics each day (I'm giving you 2248 keywords below to play with). So what are people searching for? Information, mainly. People want to know the "who, what, when, where, why and how" of terrorism and nuclear war. They want to know how to protect themselves. They want to know what happens after a bomb explodes. They want to know what targets around the world are most vulnerable. They want to know about dirty bombs and acts of terror and suitcase nukes and chemical weapons and biological weapons and....

This list goes on.

At the root of all this is the very basic human desire for safety. People are looking up information on terror and wars because they want to know if they're safe

Yes, they want information, which means selling ebooks or utilizing AdSense ads on your content site would probably be your best bets. Links to other ebooks or books would be useful (Amazon links, for example).

Creating your own product is of course a great option. Perhaps you can gather together a few dozen terrorist/security experts and ask them to all contribute an article. Compile those articles and bam, you have an ebook... or even a physical book if you choose to go into print (check out lulu.com).

There are also a several very specific profitable niches you can capitalize on. First, there are those who are looking to buy or build fallout (bomb) shelters. For example, each day there's about 108 people looking for "bomb shelters," about 102 looking for "fallout shelter," another 93 looking for "bomb shelter" (singular) and the list goes on.

That's a market that's probably ready and willing to spend money asap if you can find a solution to their problem (e.g., how to build a shelter to protect their family).

Another interesting market deals with bomb detection canines. People are looking for information on training and buying these bomb dogs. Can you provide that solution?

The great thing about this overall market is that there are so many keywords and many segments of the market you can choose to target...plus (as already mentioned), since it's a timely topic you can probably get free publicity.

TIP: those who are political minded may also enjoy creating and marketing sites around these specific keywords as they relate to the politicians and countries involved.

As usual there are four lists. The first one includes the top 2248 topic-related words, which gives you a daily estimate of the number of times the phrase is searched. The other three lists are the top 100 results for Google, Yahoo and MSN. These three lists include KEI values.

Here's an explanation of the list headings:

1: Line Number.

2: KEI (Keyword Effectiveness Index): Compares the 24Hour result with the number of competing web pages to pinpoint exactly which keywords are most effective for your campaign.

In a nutshell: Look for the keywords near the top. The higher the KEI, the more popular your keywords are, and the less competition they have. Which means you have a better chance of getting to the top.

Use the following guide:

0 - 10 Poor keyword to target

10 - 100 Good keyword to target

100 - 400 Very good keyword to target

400+ Excellent keyword to target

3: Count: The number of times people have entered this keyword from 323151770 search queries. These have been taken from the various MetaCrawlers that we survey.

4: 24Hrs: Using information taken from StatMarket, we have estimated the number of queries this keyword might receive in the current 24 hour period for (Search Engine).

5: Competing: The number of competing web pages in msn (Search Engine).

You are currently using ' exact match searching' , where the keywords are enclosed by quotation marks. We recommend using ' exact match searching' as you are actually competing with sites which have used the keyword exactly as typed in by the user.

6: Keyword.

“Quick Look” – Niche Ideas

Are you looking for a niche and willing to put the legwork in to make it profitable, but seems like you're running a little low on ideas? That's where the “Quick Look Report” comes in.

This report gives you a glance at a half a dozen niches that you can market to. We don't delve in too deep – the purpose of the report is to jumpstart your own brainstorming, plus it does give you a place to start if you want to pursue any of the following markets.

Most of these quick looks include a list of 100 keywords with their respective KEI value in Google. There may be better keywords than those listed...but the ones listed are there to give you a snapshot of the market, a place to start for you to do your own research.

Let's get started...

Quick Look #1: Oh...what a bunch of B.S.

Manure? Sure! Why not?

At first glance, it appears that manure is quite a hot topic. And the good news is that it looks profitable, as people are looking for products to buy and very specific information.

There are also a few different niches that initially pop-out at you when you start diving into this topic. For starters, it appears that people are looking for manure spreaders (wagons) for their farms. If you can find manure spreader manufacturers with affiliate programs, great – direct customers from your site to theirs (or perhaps even start up a PPC campaign). Otherwise, a content site selling information or displaying AdSense ads may be the way to go.

A second niche that pops out are those folks who are interested in manure as it relates to composting. Within these niche you can really drill down and target very specific niches, such as those looking for info on horse manure composts, those looking for hog manure compost info, etc.

So what do we have? Those who want to get rid of their manure (eg., those looking for manure wagons) and those who want to do something with their manure.

Here's the list of 100 words with Google search engine predicted daily counts and KEI values:

Quick Look #2: Can you bail me out?

Ahhh, the exciting life of bail bondsman and bounty hunters. When people start hunting for these topics online, two distinct markets emerge: 1) those who are in need of the services of a bail bondsman, and 2) those who are interested in bounty hunter/bail bondsman careers.

The first segment of the market (those who need services) can be broken up into tightly focused niches as you can see by the keywords below. For example, “fresno bail bondsman” sits right at the top of the list with a high KEI in Google. That’s just one example, but there are many cities, states, and regions specifically named in the results.

The second segment is looking not just for information, they’re also looking for supplies and equipment.

So here we have two lists: one related to bail bondsman, and one related to bounty hunters.

First, here’s the bail bondsman list:

Quick Look #3: Baby give me a sign...

Baby sign language. No, not for deaf children. This is actually adults teaching hearing babies how to “speak” using signs before they are able to use their voice. Although I’m sure some parents keep up with it after the child can speak, mainly for intellectual development reasons.

Fascinating concept, no? I first encountered this idea about a year ago or so. At that time it seemed pretty unknown. Today it’s catching on, but my hunch is that while parents are becoming aware of it, marketers looking to profit from this haven’t jumped on in droves yet.. Of course if you’re a marketer, that’s music to your ears. Cha-ching.

Here’s the list of 82 words in Google. This one is DEFINITELY worth exploring in depth:

Quick Look #4: Dogs like natural food, too. Woof!

Organic and natural foods are all the rage these days. But of course like anything that's healthy or fun, if humans do it, they want their dogs to do it too. Add that to the fact that the overall market (dog lovers) is HUGE, and you may find that lasering in on natural dog food is a hit.

Capitalize on this niche by selling (as an affiliate) natural and organic dog foods. Or really profit by selling your own product —a recipe book of organic and natural dog foods. Get a “dog nutritionist” on board to write a segment related to what sort of vitamin and mineral balance dogs need to stay healthy.

Quick Look #5: Smoke ‘em if you got ‘em

With the rising costs of cigarettes, people are looking online for cheaper alternatives.

And indeed, the cigarette market is multi-faceted. Have a look at eBay, and you’ll see auctions for discount cigarette sites online. Take a peek in your spam folder, and you’ll see the hordes of “cheap cig” spam.

So maybe the competition is tough. But have a look at the keywords below, and decide if there’s still room for you in particular niches. Here’s the list with predicted daily counts from Google:

Quick Look #6: Oh baby, look what you did!

One of people's desires is to look younger and more beautiful. However, stretch marks (from gaining weight fast, particularly pregnant women) are often thought to be a flaw that needs to be eliminated. So as you might expect, people are looking for way to get rid of 'em.

When we start dabbling in the keywords, we find that lots of people are looking for information, but there also seem to be lots of competing sites. If you get into this market, you're really going to drill down to find a niche...OR don't rely so heavily on search engine marketing.

TIP: while most people are trying to get rid of stretch marks, I've seen (male) bodybuilders who consider it a badge of courage to grow their muscles so fast they get stretch marks. So while every other site explains how to eliminate them, you may want to look at the market who wants to know how to get them!
