4. Preview your book and if all looks good verify your territories

5. Now onto pricing. This can be the difference in you succeeding and failing!

I am telling you to price your book $2.99 to $9.99 this is to receive 70% commission. If you sell a book for 99p you are not going to make the profits you want, especially at 35% commission!

If your book is fiction you can price your book higher anything from $4-$9.99

If your book is Non-fiction then from $2.99 to $7.99 I would go for lower than $6 from personal experience.

If it is a recipebook then make it from $3.50-$9.99 depending on the amount of recipes. (a 100 recipe book can easily fetch $7.99 with a good title and cover)

Tip. I wouldn't put my price at exactly $2.99 because a lot of other people are, put it at an attention seeking number I always have it as .17 or .67 (habit) It sometimes makes them look twice at your book. So if it was a thrown together Recipe Book with only 30 recipes in it with a good cover and title, I would price it as $3.67.

Clicks publish and now you just have to wait for approval from Amazon! If you have followed this guide there should be no reason for rejection!
